

I don't think we should have to take exit tests to graduate high school. Because for one reason I think they shouldn't have made that law since my mom and everyone then didn't have to take it. My second reason is that I didn't have to take a test to start school so why should I have to take a test to leave school. ~~My last and final~~ The test is pointless! I've heard it's to tell if you've learned anything some people like the test being in the school system but I just don't see the point of taking a test that I didn't have to take to start school or anything like that. But for my last and final reason I just think they should make you take the test to start school if you have to take it to leave but it doesn't work that way as everyone will say but it should work that way.

Score Point: 2

This response is considered flawed. A low degree of proficiency in persuasive writing skills is reflected. The writer clearly states that students should not be required to pass exit tests before graduating. Although three key ideas are enumerated to support this position, the final two reasons are identical. There is some evidence of organization; however, there is very little development. Details are repetitive and there are serious errors in writing conventions.
